Week Two Practice Quiz (not graded)

- Due No due date
- Points 0
- Questions 6
- Available after Sep 4 at 12am
- Time Limit None

Attempt History

	Attempt	Time	Score
LATEST	Attempt 1	2 minutes	0 out of 0

Submitted Sep 18 at 1:17pm

Correct answer

Question 1
0 / 0 pts

A major pull factor in Chinese migration to the US during the 1800s was political turmoil caused by the decline of the Qing empire.

hint: read the question carefully

- True
- False

Political turmoil in China was a push factor, not a pull factor. Make sure to know the distinction.

Wrong answer

Question 2
0 / 0 pts

Contrary to European immigrant workers in the east, the Chinese workers were coerced into their exploitative labor conditions.

- True
- False

Correct answer

Question 3
0 / 0 pts

One reason for the skewed gender/sex ratio characterizing Chinese immigration was the preference for young unattached males by American recruiters.

True

Unlike European immigrants in the east coast, Chinese immigration hardly involved married couples and whole families (only seen with the Chinese merchants).

False

Correct answer

Question 4

0 / 0 pts

Modern historians of the 19th century U.S. west point out that a line of demarcation separated the "civilized east" from the "wild west."

True

False

This is the overly romanticized depiction of the west. Modern historians argue that the west was the western tip of commercialization, not exactly the untamed "wild west."

Correct answer

Question 5

0 / 0 pts

_____refers to the commercialization of the food we eat; it is agriculture as "big business" rather than small family farms.

agribusiness

Agribusiness would be an industrial sector that some Chinese entered after the end of the gold rush. It would later be the main sector for Japanese and Filipino labor migrants (discussed in future lectures).

agribusiness

False

Wrong answer

Question 6

0 / 0 pts

One misconception of the American west during the 1800s is that exploration and settlement of the west was driven by market forces, i.e., the pursuit of profit.

True

False